1997-2001	Slovakia	GHK: Mathis.Primdal@ghkint.com	Consultant and subsequently Team Leader/Project Director	Regional Economic Development and Institutional Building Project, DfID: The REDIS project was the leading regional development project in Slovakia. It involved developing a regional level (sub-NUTS II) partnership including districts, local authorities, private sector, NGOs and other partners. It covered five sectors, namely SME development, human resource development, environment development, housing development and tourism development. Ricardo has been involved in this project since 1997 and was the project director from mid-2000, based in Slovakia. project dealt with the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Review and secure the financial sustainability of the 5P enterprise centre ▪ Prepare and submit a 'package' ISPA application involving 9 municipalities ▪ Integrate the regional development partnership with the ROP ▪ Organise a conference on the Future of Regional Development in Slovakia ▪ Secure the sustainability of the project's institutions and partnerships ▪ Write report on regional development and the future in Slovakia.

This project involves 6 different sectors of activity: regional development, SMEs, tourism, transport, science, education and technology and

	Austria	om		environment. The objective was to improve communication and co-operation between partner institutions at local and regional; identify problems and barriers; and propose future action steps to develop the border regions in a more co-ordinated manner. Ricardo led the regional development sector activities and was the Team Leader.
2000-2001	Slovakia	GHK: Mathis.Primdal@ghkint.com	Consultant	Strengthening Capacity in Environmental Project Development, DfID: This project was intended to seize the opportunity of Slovakia benefiting more fully from the EU pre-accession process by obtaining ISPA funds or equivalent, by strengthening the capability of regional authorities, municipalities and associated municipal service utilities through providing effective training and demonstration. Ricardo undertook this project in close co-operation with the main contractor, WS Atkins. He co-ordinated the preparation of 3 environmental projects, including ISPA and CBC project applications, as well as fully 'bankable' projects involving private sector finance.
2000-2001	Slovakia	GHK: Mathis.Primdal@ghkint.com	Consultant	Local Government Capacity Building, EU: The importance of strengthening local government structures in Slovakia cannot be overstated. However, at present many local authorities in Slovakia are resource-poor and institutionally weak and have only just begun to think about how they are to act as agents for positive change in the new free-market Slovak, European and Global economies. This project tried to enhance capacity through a variety of mechanisms including: the development of a comparative manual, international training programme, study tours, international conference etc. Ricardo was the project director during the last phase of this contract.
1999-2000	UK	GHK: Mathis.Primdal@ghkint.com	Consultant	Evaluation of the EMPLOYMENT and ADAPT Initiatives, DfEE: The EMPLOYMENT and ADAPT programmes are among the most important EU initiatives targeted at the disadvantaged in the labour market (e.g. disabled, ethnic minorities, women etc.). I wrote the proposal and assisted in the evaluation of both programmes: interviews with key stakeholders/partners, detailed statistical analysis and case study research. The conclusions fed into the developing the EQUAL programme for the post-2000 programming period.
1999	Macedonia	GHK: Mathis.Primdal@ghkint.com	Consultant	Business Plans for SME Support Agencies, DfID: Ricardo participated in a mission designed to assist the three SME Support Agencies (business centres) which have been set-up in Tetovo and Gostivar (Albania dominated areas) and Ohrid (Macedonian dominated) to enhance the draft business plans that had been produced for the year 2000. In addition to this, he helped to develop the programme of activities for the project for the year 2000, following a project review carried out by the client.
1999	Slovakia	GHK: Mathis.Primdal@ghkint.com	Consultant	Tourism Development in the Stredne Pohronie Region: Ricardo was responsible for the implementation of the REDIS tourism sector's activities. This involved assisting and mentoring local staff in relation to the development of a tourism development action plan for the Stredne Pohronie region, development of promotional brochures, creation of a Web Site to promote the region; and the development of a self-administered market research tool designed to assist operators of tourism facilities to better understand and respond to their clients' needs.
1998-2000	Slovakia	GHK: Mathis.Primdal@ghkint.com	Consultant	Regional Partnership/Institution Building: Following the creation of a Regional Housing Forum, drawing together housing partners such as local/district/regional authorities, real estate agents, financial institutions, housing companies, construction firms, NGOs etc., Ricardo assisted the regional partners to form their own partnership organisation through the creation and facilitation of a Working Group which developed a new model regional institution. This was formerly approved by all partners and the new Regional Housing Forum acted independently.
1998-2000	Slovakia	GHK: Mathis.Primdal@ghkint.com	Consultant	Development of Database Systems to Enhance Labour Market Mobility: One of the most notable features of the property markets in Central and Eastern European countries was the rigidity and inflexibility in the housing market. The inadequate supply of housing, combined with lack of affordability and an underdeveloped private rented and/or home ownership sector, mean that there was a corresponding lack of mobility. If people could move around easily, the labour market suffered through a mismatch of labour demand and supply. Ricardo took the lead in designing and implementing a system involving housing brokerages designed to assist housing and thus, labour market mobility. The brokerages cover respectively the local authority, co-operative and private enterprise sectors of the housing market. Ricardo designed and commissioned these innovative housing brokerages targeted at the private rented sector, as well as the social housing sector. They became operational at regional level, were transferred to an NGO and then extended nationally.
1999	Czech Republic & Slovakia	GEWOS	Consultant	Property Markets in the Slovak and Czech Republics, Berlin Bank Group: These two countries have made differing degrees of progress in reforming their economies, institutions and democratic systems. This project examined the development of the office, housing, hotel and retail markets in five cities: Prague, Brno, Ostrava, Bratislava and Kosice. The report assisted potential investors to assess the costs and benefits associated with these two countries.
1998	UK	London Borough of Croydon	Consultant	Anti-Poverty and Regeneration, London Borough of Croydon: Croydon is the largest borough in London. To ensure that the disadvantaged communities benefit fully from its health, economic development and general regeneration activities it created anti-poverty strategy, a tool to target policy activities and resources for regeneration. I worked with the lead officer to ensure that the strategy was structurally and methodologically robust, delivering a product, which could be utilised by both experts and the local community.
1999	Slovakia	GHK: Mathis.Primdal@ghkint.com	Consultant	Reform and Reorientation of Local Government Services: The financial pressures confronting almost all local authorities in Slovakia (and elsewhere in CEE), was causing them to reconsider issues such as: what are their core services, what could be contracted out and/or privatised and what was the best method of managing the reformed services etc. The Mayor of Kremnica and Skalka in central Slovakia invited Ricardo to assess these issues; examine the four existing local-authority owned and controlled companies; and present a series of recommendations about reform.
1998	Poland	GEWOS	Consultant	Alternative Institutional Models for Raising Professional Competence, BGK Bank, Know How Fund & Co-operation Fund: Previous research by Ricardo and Dr. Alina Muziol-Weclawowicz highlighted the urgent need to raise the professional standards of the housing management service in Poland. Because of their experience in Poland, they were commissioned to design three alternative model institutions designed to raise standards of management over time at the national. The models for institution building were presented to a specially selected and representative panel of organisations associated with housing throughout Poland.
1998-	Slovakia	GHK:	Consultant	Regeneration and Marketing Strategy for Kremnica, Kremicke Bane, Krauhule and Skalka: Kremnica is a small town that was in competition

1999		Mathis.Primdal@ghkint.com		with various other locations in the Ziar Region. This project was of significance to the future of Kremnica and was undertaken with close co-operation with the Mayor, senior officials and other partners, including the surrounding villages. Ricardo conducted a series of interviews with the relevant public and private organisations and developed a strategy for the future of the town, based on the needs of the region and opportunities for tourism in the area. This resulted in agreement between the relevant political leaders about the way forward and an agreed strategy for tourism-oriented development which will be implemented following a public consultation exercise to finalising the strategy.
1998	Hungary, Czech Republic & Poland	GEWOS R. Szameitat info@gewos.de	Consultant	Residential Investment Opportunities in the Czech Republic, Hungary and Poland, Hamburg Based Financial Institution: The above Central European countries are at the forefront of the so-called 'transition' countries in terms of economic and democratic reform. This makes them extremely interesting to potential investors who are attracted by much higher profitability levels than in, for example, Germany. Ricardo conducted an analysis in order to assess the nature of the residential market in these countries and the likelihood of them being of interest to a financial institution which offers mortgage-related products. The recommendations of the report helped to influence the client's hitherto risk-averse attitude towards these emerging property markets.
1998	Slovakia	GHK: Mathis.Primdal@ghkint.com	Consultant	Regional Conference, Stredne Pohronie Region: Following the completion of a sample survey to assess issues such as housing satisfaction, needs, demand and affordability, as well as the development of a housing database to facilitate housing mobility, Ricardo co-ordinated the participating of a regional housing conference designed to raise awareness of the housing opportunities and constraints in the Pohronie Region of Slovakia.
1998	Poland	Krakow City	Consultant	EU European Cities of Culture: Krakow 2000 City Promotion Strategy, Krakow City: Ricardo was commissioned to assess Krakow's promotion and marketing strategies following the EU's decision to select it as one of the European Cities of Culture for the year 2000. The project involved assessing the promotion strategies being carried out in Krakow and comparing them with two other European cities, namely Glasgow in Scotland and Prague in the Czech Republic. Ricardo presented a series of recommendations about how best the city can be promoted and how the benefits of being designated European City of Culture 2000 can be maximised, thus delivering greater economic and other opportunities to the city.
1998	Poland	DFID Paul Trinder	Consultant	Demand for a National Housing Institution, Know How Fund: Following a previous research exercise that involved comparing the UK and the Polish housing training and education systems, Ricardo was commissioned, together with a Polish housing expert Dr. Alina Muziol-Weclawowicz, to conduct a detailed follow-up research project. This involved a research project covering 50 local housing organisations (including local authorities, co-operatives, enterprises and TBSs) in order to assess the nature of the main housing problems, the demand for housing training and education and the perceived need for a national housing training and education institution charged with raising, in the long term, the quality and professionalism of the housing management service throughout Poland.
1997	Poland	Tesco	Consultant	Supermarket / Hypermarket Licensing and Marketing Strategy, Tesco plc.: Tesco, the fourth largest European food retailer, commissioned Ricardo / Regeneris Europe in order to conduct research on the likelihood, nature and timescale of government legislation on the regulation of large supermarket / hypermarket developments in Poland. In addition, the project involved case studies with Polish local authorities (Wroclaw, Poznan and Krakow) in order to assess the key factors in relation to enabling Tesco to build a positive image and relationship with local planning authorities in future. Ricardo delivered a series of recommendations that fed into Tesco's overall PR, marketing and property acquisition strategies.
1997	UK & Poland	DFID Paul Trinder	Consultant	Housing Training and Education in the UK/Poland, Know How Fund/Co-operation Fund: One of the major barriers to the process of economic and democratic transition in Poland was the housing market. There are a number of problems, not least the fact that the housing professionals are poorly skilled. The Know How Fund and the Co-operation Fund commissioned Ricardo to work jointly with a Polish housing expert (Dr. Alina Muziol-Weclawowicz) to undertake a two-stage project: a comparative analysis of the housing and education system in the UK and a thorough examination of the existing provision in Poland. These reports enabled the aid organisations to determine whether or not there was a need to set up a national housing institution to enhance professionalism in this sector.
1997	Slovakia	GHK: Mathis.Primdal@ghkint.com	Consultant	Regional Housing Strategy Know How Fund/DfID: Ricardo worked as a subcontractor to GHK International on this Know How Fund project based in Ziar nad Hronom. The project involved developing, in co-operation with local housing organisations and housing specialists, a regional and local housing Action Plan for this region of Slovakia.
1997	Poland	Krakow City Council	Consultant	Innovative Private-Public Partnerships, Krakow City Council: In common with local authorities elsewhere in Poland, indeed throughout CEE, Krakow City Council was exploring possible methods of funding additional services and facilities within the context of the budget constraints which it faces. This project involved Ricardo assessing the extent to which the Private Finance Initiative (PFI) pioneered in the UK could be applied in Poland. The notion of innovative partnerships between the public and the private sector to fund what have traditionally been perceived as purely public sector activities had the potential to be useful in Poland and elsewhere in CEE.
1996-1998	UK	GHK: Mathis.Primdal@ghkint.com	Team Leader	Evaluation of Urban Regeneration Project, Dalston City Challenge, Hackney: DCC conducted a comprehensive quantitative and qualitative analysis of its impact on the labour market, investment, housing, health, ethnic minorities and local communities. I led this evaluation study, jointly with GHK Economics and Management. The result was reports on the baseline impact of the regeneration project, its effect on the ethnic minorities, the effectiveness of the partnership and an overall evaluation, which was principally compiled by me.
1996-1997	UK	Newchurch & Company Roger Taylor	Consultant	Evaluation of the White Collar Compulsory Tendering (CCT) System, Department of the Environment, Transport and the Regions: White Collar CCT (Compulsory Competitive Tendering) represents a former Government flagship scheme for local government in the UK. This project was the Local Government Division's largest research contract and involved conducting 45 case studies ('before' and 'after') over several years. I developed the methodology and led the teams involved in conducting this sensitive and complex research project.

1996	UK	Newchurch & Company Roger Taylor	Consultant	Investment for the Western International Market (WIM), Hounslow: Ricardo co-ordinated an assessment of private finance opportunities for Hounslow's WIM site. This involved exploring private sector interest and undertaking the complete redevelopment of the site under the aegis of the Private Finance Initiative (PFI), the creation of an Information Memorandum for the redevelopment, advertisement for the Official Journal of the European Communities, interviewing, short-listing, selection and negotiation with preferred partner on behalf of the local authority.
1996	UK	Newchurch & Company Roger Taylor	Consultant	Rural Challenge Regeneration Funds & Single Regeneration Bid, Derbyshire Dales District: This involved the submission of two related bids for Rural Challenge and Single Regeneration Bid funding. I assessed the unsuccessful bid made by the Council; recommended an alternative strategy; developed the draft bids; and the submission, which was successful. This regeneration strategy, which centres on Bakewell (known for its tarts/pastries) secure the future of this traditional market town and its wide rural catchment area.
1995	England, Wales, Scotland & N. Ireland	Newchurch & Company Roger Taylor	Consultant	Private Finance/Investment for Higher Education, Higher Education Funding Councils: Like other public sector services, higher education institutions were keen to examine all the options for investment. This project involved writing a Guide to private finance for the funding councils; commissioning and developing a database of higher education Private Finance Initiative opportunities; and organising series of regional conferences on PFI in higher education. I had a leading role in all aspects of this project.
1995	UK	Newchurch & Company Roger Taylor	Consultant	Market Opportunities in the Local Government Sector, Hays plc: This large private sector firm wanted to explore the extent to which market opportunities exist in the local government sphere, arising from the White Collar Compulsory Competitive Tendering legislation. The project involved assessing the company's existing markets, synergies with local government work and degree of competition from other firms. This resulted in a report, highlighting the market opportunities for Hays plc.
1995	UK	Newchurch & Company Roger Taylor	Consultant	The Housing and Council Tax Benefits System, Department of Social Security: The department commissioned a project to review the formula for allocating funds to local authorities for undertaking activities on its behalf. The project involved an analysis of the formula used to distribute about £300m per annum between all local authorities for the administration of the benefit system. This involved 18 full case studies and a detailed statistical modelling exercise. The final recommendations were well received by both local authorities and the DSS.
1994	UK	Newchurch & Company Roger Taylor	Consultant	Local Government Private Finance Initiative, Newchurch & Company: I was responsible for developing a database of PFI developments which local authorities in the UK were interested in undertaking; as well as those, which the private sector was keen to be involved with. This project consisted of developing appropriate data collection methods, commissioning the database, setting up a Help Line and ensuring that that the project was operationalised.
1994	UK	Newchurch & Company Roger Taylor	Consultant	Redevelopment of Vacant Site, South Manchester Hospitals Trust: This project involved writing a report, which explored the constraints and opportunities for the redevelopment of one of the hospital sites owned by the Trust.
